Zeugheer Hall

BANQUETS WHERE ROYALTY ONCE HELD THEIR CELEBRATIONS

When the ballroom designed by Leonhard Zeugheer (1812 -1866) first opened its doors on 1 June 1865, Empress Eugénie, consort of Napoleon III, residing at the hotel at the time praised the premises, stating there could be few halls of greater splendour in France itself. Little has changed in that respect since that day. Indeed, the Neo-Renaissance style of the hall is more resplendent today than ever before. So speakers beware: the sheer beauty of it may leave you speechless...

This way you get to know, how in 1859 hotel guests protected themselves against the noise of Richard Wagner who was composing in this guest room. Or how (at that time not yet 'Sir') Winston Churchill, 19-years-old, in 1893 was adoring the electric light of the Schweizerhof. Or how our regular guests the Converse family was hijacked and later freed on their way back home in 1970. But also anecdotes from several festivals are not missing, for example how B.B. King spontaneously played his guitar 2002 in our Zeugheer Hall.

Your company stays at special rates during your event. Ask us for an offer with your reservation.
